A party of nine from the Irma church attended the young people's rally held in Viking on Friday, Oct. 9th. Practically all the churches in the Wainwright Presbytery were represented, and the meeting provided both information and inspiration in full measure.

Mr. J. McClary of Edmonton, President of the Alberta Conference Y. P. Union, gave a vivid speech telling of the aims and extent of the Christian Youth movement, not only in the Dominion but throughout the American continent, linking up ten million young people on active service to build up a new world, commencing first of all in the individual by building up a new person in Christ.

The following extract taken from the "Statement of Christian Conviction" indicates the spirit of the movement: "From Him (Christ) we take our name, and in His cause we have enlisted. He prayed for the coming of His Father's Kingdom, where God's righteous will should be done on earth. We share in His hope, and pray that prayer with Him."

A Presbytery Union was organized and the officers installed in a short but impressive ceremony. The objective is to have a local Y.P.U. on every pastoral charge, and it is confidently expected that the spirit of the Viking full measure, Mr. J. LIBERALS SWEEP INTO POWER UNDER RISING TIDE OF LIBERALISM

Biggest House Majority Ever Recorded Marks Great Upset—165 Seats Defeat Assured Grits—Conservatives But 41.

Registering their dissatisfaction with the policies which have strangled Canada's trade for the past five years, but thousands of young Canadians into work camps, jeopardized the homes and businesses of countless thousands of others who saw their life's savings swept away, electors of Canada went to the polls Monday and by the biggest house majority ever accorded any party in the history of Canada swept R. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and the Liberal party into office in the greatest political upset ever recorded in the Dominion.

Anti-Conservative Tide
In the general elections of 1930 Premier Bennett was elected with 137 Conservatives, while the Liberal leader could muster only 88 followers. The balance of the House of Commons on that occasion was made up of 10 United Farmers, 2 Progressives, 3 Liberal Progressives, 2 Labor, 1 Independent Labor and 2 Independents.

It was a clear majority over all, giving R. Hon. Mr. Bennett the necessary facilities for carrying out his promises and policies, but Monday that majority was wiped out by a tidal wave of anti-administration votes that started with Prince Edward Island on the Atlantic seaboard and ended on the Pacific Coast, leaving the Bennett government the most badly beaten administration in all Canada's history.

Amplifying Turnover
The turnover was annihilating and now the party standings show the Liberals definitely elected in 165 seats, with the Conservatives only 41, a time of 41. Social Credit candidates were the next largest group, electing 17 members, 15 of them from Alberta. Other party showings were C.C.F., 7, Independent Liberals, 4, Reconstruction party, 1, Independent Conservative, 1, U.F.O., Labor, 4, Independent, 1, Liberal Progressive, 2, while 5 seats remained in the doubtful columns with Liberals definitely leading in three of them.

Liberal gains from the Conservatives had totalled 78, while Social Credit, C.C.F. and Independent Liberals and Liberal Progressives had also cut into Conservative seats. It was the greatest political debacle yet seen in Canada, and with it passed a noted Canadian political figure, Henri Bourassa, stormy petrel of the Commons for many years who suffered a surprise defeat.

Although Premier Bennett and his cabinet colleagues had been declaring their confidence in victory and vindication until the close of the polls it was early apparent that their confidence was misplaced.

First returns came from Prince Edward Island. In the 1930 elections three Conservatives and one Liberal had been returned from this province, but Monday the tide had turned and under an avalanche of votes four Liberals were swept into office. Not once were the Liberals headed in the ballot count. They took the lead as the first ballot boxes were opened and steadily opened it up until every seat was assured.

Nova Scotia was the next province to show which way the tide was flowing. With 10 Conservatives and four Liberals elected in 1930, but with the number of seats cut from 14 to 12 under a later redistribution, the Liberals carried the province by storm.

It was a clean sweep, and when the final check-up was made the Mackenzie King followers had been elected in all 12 seats.

New Brunswick Changes
New Brunswick, birthplace of Premier Bennett, turned round completely from its 1930 vote. At that time under the promises of Mr. Bennett 10 Conservatives and one Liberal were elected.

Monday the figures were reversed and it was 10 Liberals and one Conservative.

Quebec Gives Surprise
Quebec provided another surprise for the Bennett followers. In the 1930 elections they had carried 24 of the Quebec seats to the Liberals 40 with one seat going Independent.

Monday the irresistible Liberal rush carried 55 Liberal seats with 4 Liberal Independents and only 5 Conservatives.

By this time it was apparent that the Bennett government was doomed, and as the vote counting came into Ontario, traditionally Tory, no doubt was left as to the ultimate outcome.

In 1930 Conservatives had elected 69 members with Liberals electing 22 and Progressives 1. Monday the count was 55 Liberals; 26 Conservatives and 1 U.F.O.-Labor.

Eleven in Manitoba
Coming to the Manitoba boundary with a definite promise of victory the Liberal leader saw his majority in the house still further strengthened.

In 1930 Manitoba returned 11 Conservatives, 1 Liberal, 3 Liberal Progressives and 2 Labor members.

Monday saw the Liberals piling up victories in 11 seats with the Conservatives dropping to 2 and the C.C.F. holding the two former Labor seats and a Liberal Progressive elected in 1 other riding while 2 were in the doubtful column.

Into Saskatchewan swept the tide of Liberal voting. In 1930 Saskatchewan returned 8 Conservatives, 11 Liberals and 2 Progressives.

In the 1935 campaign just closed Social Credit had gone into Saskatchewan, nominating a candidate in every riding. Premier Aberhart of Alberta had personally directed the fight in the neighboring province and had confidently predicted a clean sweep for his new party which, he said, would even take a few seats in Manitoba. Observers who saw the strength of the Social Credit campaign believed it would be effective, but when the ballots were counted it was seen that the Liberal sweep was still strong.

Monday's voting in Saskatchewan saw 17 Liberals, 2 Social Credit, 1 C.C.F. and 1 Conservative elected in the 21 seats and Social Credit was definitely out of the picture as far as that province was concerned.

Alberta Strongly Credit
In Alberta however it was a different story. In this province the impetus gained in the provincial elections by the Social Credit party was still strong and whereas the 1930 elections saw 4 Conservatives, 3 Liberals and 9 U.F.A. elected for the sixteen seats then open, Monday's balloting saw the new Social Credit party take 15 seats, leaving one for the Conservatives and one for the Liberals. Under redistribution the Alberta ridings had been increased by one since the 1930 elections.

The lone Conservative seat was in West Calgary where Premier Bennett was personally successful in the seat he held for so many years while the Liberal win was chalked up in Edmonton where James A. MacKinnon was elected with a handsome majority over his nearest opponent who was a Conservative.

U.F.A. Submerged
The U.F.A. was completely eclipsed—Sunk without trace in the provincial election, where not a single U.F.A. member was returned, every member of the cabinet going down to defeat in addition to every private member of the legislature, the federal members of that party saw themselves swamped under another tidal wave of ballots. The U.F.A. Old Guard, including the able leader, Robt. Gardiner who ran as a C.C.F. candidate in Arcadia, together with the veteran E. J. Garland of Bow River, G. G. Coote of Macleod and H. E. Spencer of Battle River were all engulfed and with their defeat the U.F.A. as a political party was completely off the slate both federally and provincially.

LOCAL ELECTION RESULTS
The result of the Irma poll at the recent federal election was as follows:

Robt. Fair, Social Credit 108
H. E. Spencer, U.F.A. 32
J. W. G. Morrison, Conservative 30
M. L. Forster, Liberal 7
Spoiled Ballots 3

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

Nancy set out one afternoon to climb to the top of the hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and misses the path Aurora Tibbs had told her to follow. A truck comes along the road, driven by Matthew Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They ascend the hill, look around, and then go to Cousin Columbine's. There Mark Adams tells Nancy that his brother Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack Nelson has been hired to help out while Luke's leg gets better. With Jack away, Nancy finds that life is lonesome, and having no books to read, the idea of starting a public library at Pine Ridge seems a good one, and Nancy writes home to get her parents to send all the books they could spare and all they could induce others to let them have.

Nancy's parents and friends gave their liberal support to her request for books, and a sizeable box arrived in due course. Father and mother painted a sign for the library, and the Adams boys worked on the shelves for the books and decorations to make the room look presentable.

Jack Nelson, Matthew Adams, and Nancy go to the prairie home of Matthews' uncle for the ride, and after Nancy and Jack leave for home, they are caught in a blizzard. Blinded by the swirling snow they collide with a bus full of school children, which was stalled across the road with its back wheels resting in a snow-filled gully. Their car being wrecked, Jack and Nancy stay with the children and do all they can to help. The next morning Jack sets out for help in the blizzard.

Now Go On With The Story

Tom Oggood, stripped to his overalls and cotton shirt, was putting his clothes on the boy who had given up

Jack's coat. Without Tom's help, Nancy told herself, she could not endure much longer. That boy was a hero! How many times had she seen him, when on the brink of dozing, pull himself together valiantly to help the younger ones. Why, he was drowsy now, now drowsing. His task accomplished, he had slumped onto that huddled mass upon the floor. Oh, he mustn't go under! Not brave little Tom Oggood! Nancy dragged herself up, shaking the boy with all her falling strength.

"Wake up, Tommy! I need you! We must help these children. Don't go to sleep, Tom. . . . Keep fighting . . . fighting."

An hour later when the bus door snapped opened and Matthew Adams, his uncle, and two grim-faced fathers stepped fearfully inside, Nancy's fur coat was covering a mound of children, while the girl herself, almost too spent to realize that help had come, sat on the floor amid a drift of snow with only a child's thin sweater covering her thin silk underwear, nodding, nodding, as she rubbed mechanically at a small boy's frozen feet.

CHAPTER XIX.

Such events are "news" to the Associated Press. On the morning after that momentous blizzard James Nelson arose early, for Margaret was convalescing from an attack of flu, and the woman who had been coming in to help was also ill. Hence it devolved on Dad to get the family breakfast; but before beginning this unaccustomed duty he stopped to take in his morning paper.

Spring had come early to Edgemore. The air, James noticed, was almost balmy. He had a melodious whistle, and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" was on his lips when, suddenly realizing that time was fleeting, he turned toward the kitchen.

"Hello, there!" greeted Phil on his way downstairs; and smiling, James tossed him the paper without looking at it.

"Take that up to your mother, Phil. She may like to glance at the news before I go. But come right back, sonny. I need a coffee's assistant." And ask how much coffee I ought to use?"

Margaret looked up happily as the boy entered her room.

"It's good to hear Dad's whistle, isn't it?" she said, recalling the long months when that cheerful sound was silenced. "I feel like a slacker lying here while he turns cook; but the doctor says I'm not to do any other work. Thank goodness Aunt Louise will be out to-night! Don't stop to read the paper, Phil; and tell your father a heaping tablespoon—"

"Look here!" The small boy's eyes were bright with interest. "There's been a awful blizzard in Colorado! I wonder if it was near Cousin Columbine's."

Margaret reached for the paper, continuing almost automatically: "A heaping tablespoonful to every cup, Phil." Then as he ran to join his father, her eyes fell on these arresting headlines:

"TERRIFIC BLIZZARD SWEEPS COLORADO PLAINS. BUS FULL OF SCHOOL CHILDREN SAVED BY TWO YOUNG PEOPLE AFTER THE DRIVER, GOING IN SEARCH OF HELP, BECAME CONFUSED AND DIED IN THE STORM."

"Denver, Colo., March 27th. (AP) A story of heroism and self-sacrifice was enacted yesterday afternoon in a school bus stalled on the Colorado prairie when Nancy Nelson, nineteen, popular sub-deb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Nelson of Boston and cousin of Miss Columbine Nelson, pioneer resident of Pine Ridge, Colorado, stripped to her underwear in order to put her clothes on children who were freezing to death before her eyes; while her brother Jack, seventeen, facing the storm in hope of bringing help, succeeded in reaching a distant ranch where he collapsed after giving news of the whereabouts of the missing bus. Without the heroic action of these two young people, sixteen children would undoubtedly have perished. Frantic parents—"

Margaret read no further because her hands were shaking so that she could not see the type; but she managed to call, a call that somehow started her husband; and at that very moment the front door bell rang.

John set the coffee pot on the stove and said: "You answer that bell, son. I'll see what Mother wants."

Margaret was lying back against the pillows, her face colorless. One hand still clutched the paper, and a limp gesture told her husband he was to read it. He sat on the bed, and, strangely, his daughter's name stared up at him as he took the sheet, even before he saw the headlines.

"Nancy Nelson . . . stripped to her underwear . . . brother Jack . . . collapsed . . ."

"It's a telegram!" cried Phil, bursting into the room in great excitement. "Maybe it's from Cousin Columbine asking me to visit her."

Open it quick, won't you? Why—what's the matter? Is Mother sick again? Gee! there's the telephone. What'd it have to ring for now?"

As he sped away, his father stared down at the yellow envelope. For a moment it seemed as if he could not face its contents. Then, bracing himself inwardly, he tore it open, eyes seeking the signature before he read:

DON'T BE UNDULY ALARMED BY REPORTS IN PAPERS STOP. BOTH WILL HAVE BEST OF CARE AT HOSPITAL STOP JACK MAKING GOOD FIGHT AGAINST PNEUMONIA AND ALL POSSIBLE BEING DONE STOP TELEGRAPHIC IF COMING STOP WILL WIRE AGAIN AT NOON AFTER TALKING WITH DOCTOR STOP AM PROUD OF OUR CHILDREN COLUMBINE NELSON.

Margaret, watching his tense face, cried out: "Is—is it—"

"Not that!" James broke in quickly. "Not that, dear!" and read the message, his voice trembling. Then the small boy was back, calling as he ran up the stairs: "It's Aunt Lou on the telephone. She wants you, Dad. Where's that telegram? Was it—"

When James returned five minutes later there was a bit more color in Margaret's face, and Phil, avidly perusing the story, lifted his head from the newspaper to exclaim: "Gee, Daddy! Jack wasn't wearing any socks! He'd put 'em on a little feller that was freezing. And Nancy had given her stockings to some one too, and her dress'n her fur coat and everything. She had one of the kid's sweaters over her slip. She got unconscious when she found 'em. One of those Adam fellows got their first. They'd been to his uncle's ranch and got caught in the blizzard on the way home and collided with that bus. It says they showed unbelievable heroism; and the driver was found a mile off the road under a snowdrift. Nancy's legs are frozen to—"

He ceased abruptly at a warning glance from his father.

"That's enough now, Phil. Louise had seen the paper, Margaret, and was rather worked up—for Louise. Another teacher will take her classes and she'll catch an early train out here. I'll stay until she comes, dear. She asked if we were going to Colorado, but—"

"I—I feel as if I must, Jim," said Margaret weakly. "If Jack has pneumonia he—he's grown so fast that—"

"The last letter said he'd gained twelve pounds," the little boy reminded them, "and Nancy said he'd never looked so healthy."

"Her lips trembled, and James interrupted: "I understand how you feel, Margaret; but it's impossible for you to travel now. This fella's so treacherous if one gets up too soon. But I'll drop everything and go myself unless the next telegram is reassuring. I promise that."

"Is pneumonia a very bad thing to have?" questioned Phil soberly.

"Pretty bad," Dad answered, thinking that should Jack not weather it his mother could scarcely reach him in any case. "Now close your eyes, Margaret, and I'll bring some coffee. You'll feel stronger when you've had something to eat."

Louise Nelson said afterwards that she spent that entire day answering telephone and door bells. The news spread fast; and friends and neighbors responded anxiously. A number of Nancy's schoolmates called on from town, as well as some of the far-famed "boy friends." There were calls from Exeter asking if Jack was as badly off as the papers intimated; and it seemed to the distracted woman that she had no time in which to cheer the invalid.

Cousin Columbine was better than her word, the second message arriving almost an hour before promised. Louise called her brother's office and read it to him.

"It's addressed to you, Jim. She says: 'Doctor thinks things look rather better, and considering how far away you are, advises you not to start immediately. Jack doing as well as can be expected. Nancy suffering greatly but her courage is good and will increase as weakness wears away. Letter follows this, but will write and wire daily for the present. Shall stay near Clockner Hospital so address me there.'"

"Then Dad won't go?" asked Phil, hovering near as his aunt telephoned. She shook her head. "Are they both better?" Aunt Louise nodded because speech came hard. The message was hopeful, yet she seemed to read something between the lines. Pneumonia, she thought, sometimes travels faster than a railroad train. Was that why the doctor advised Jack's parents not to come?

Odd Jobs In Hollywood

One Man Makes All The Cobwebs For Spooky Films

In the Hollywood studio is a man who has worked 10 years—and he has yet to see a film star. He works at night. Every night he files and sharpens the teeth of 200 saws for the army of carpenters using them the next day. His is only one of the many odd jobs that go to the making of a picture. There is the "cobweb spinner," for example. He makes cobwebs for those "spooky" films they turn out in Hollywood every now and then. He spins them out of a chemical mixture that is formed into gossamer strands by a strange electrical machine. When a glass is to be shot from an actor's hand or a rope to be snipped by a bullet they call in Tex Driscoll, who has been doing this sort of thing for more than 10 years, and who has never missed yet. Perhaps the strangest job is that of Herman Frommel. He has to listen to music. Being the copyright expert, he can tell who wrote any few bars and where it comes from. That prevents the studio lifting music for which they might be asked to pay an exorbitant sum later.

Sapphire Is Favorite

Selected As Betrothal Stone By Brides Of King's Sons

The brides of sons of the King and Queen have been at one in their choice of betrothal stones, says the Glasgow Herald. Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon set the example, which was followed a year ago by Princess Marina of Greece, and has been copied now by Lady Alice Scott. No stone is as beautiful as the true blue sapphire, especially when its lights are enhanced by diamond setting. The Princess Royal selected an emerald engagement ring, probably because so many sapphire stones were included in the Clanciarde jewels, which were a wedding present from her bridegroom.

Should Apply To Motorist

Refraining From Conversation With Driver Might Prevent Accidents

Don't talk to the driver! Why should the familiar order apply only to the motorman? He at least has rails to hold him in the line of duty. The motorist has only a steering wheel.

Who can hold the car strictly to the straight and narrow with somebody jabbering into his ear? How can he concentrate with a shrill voice yelling at every curve, "Look!"

The front seat driver is accused of many crimes and misdemeanors, of some of which he is not guilty. The back seat one is participant criminal. But the man at the wheel gets the devastating headline and the plaintiff attorney's scathing remarks to the jury.

"Don't talk to the driver!" ought to be hung over every motorist's head. And to it should be added: "Don't let the driver talk to you!" The place for a driver's tongue is in his cheek. The place for his hand is on the wheel, and not pointing out the pictures. And the place for his mind and eye is on the ribbon of concrete unrolling ahead—Los Angeles Times.

Homage To Canada's Dead

Earl Of Bessborough Places Wreath In Peace Tower

Homage to Canada's dead in the Great War was paid by the Earl of Bessborough as one of his last official acts before he left this country. Accompanied by his staff, His Excellency proceeded to the memorial chamber in the Peace Tower at Ottawa, and there deposited a wreath of maple leaves and poppies on the Altar of Remembrance. Following the ceremony the Governor-General was presented with a document which voiced the Legion's appreciation of the interest manifested by His Excellency in ex-service men's problems throughout his regime in Canada.

Little Helps For This Week

Let not him that grudgeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off. 1 Kings; 20:2.

Was I not girded for the battle-field?

Bore I not helm of pride and glittering sword? Behold the fragments of my Thy battle against evil. I have tried to do the duty that lay nearest me, and to leave whatever Thou didst commit to my charge a little better than when I found it. I have not been good, but I have at least tried to be good. Take the sword, dear Lord. Strike not my unworthy name off the roll-roll of the noble and victorious army which is the blessed company of all faithful people, and let me too be found written in the Book of Life, even though I stand the lowest and last on the list.

Oh, be at least able to say in that day—Lord I am no hero. I have been careless, cowardly, sometimes all but malicious. Punishment I have deserved. I deny it not. But a traitor and deserter I have never been. I have tried to fight on Thy side in Thy battle against evil. I have tried to do the duty that lay nearest me, and to leave whatever Thou didst commit to my charge a little better than when I found it. I have not been good, but I have at least tried to be good. SPORT PEEPS

The building of an artificial ice feature in the arena in Calgary assures the hockey fans plenty of sport irrespective of the weather. The cost of such an ice plant is large, yet appears justified by the success in other cities. Calgary always seems to be just one jump ahead of Edmonton in so many ways. For quite a time now they have talked about artificial ice for the Edmonton arena, but Calgary put their talk into something tangible.

With ice available even when the thermometer soars to melting points, both Edmonton and Calgary received extension of the hockey franchise in the Northwestern League. Games that are scheduled to be played in the Capital City will be transferred to the southern arena when warm weather spoils the ice surface in Edmonton.

Will the game of lacrosse attain the popularity of hockey? This truly Canadian game, originating with the Indians, has been revamped somewhat so that instead of being played in wide open spaces, the scene of the conflict is an arena, where the ticket holders may sit in comfort and see clearly what is being done. Players are changed as in hockey every few minutes, thus speeding up this game to a flashing dazzling panorama. They claim not so much blood flows as formerly, yet admit that with the flying hickory sticks a few teeth are lost. The sport has grown very popular under the new rules, and bids fair to rival the somewhat similar game of hockey.

When a girl can step out and cover 100 yards in the fast time of 10.9 seconds, it looks as though the female of the species will vie with the male for honors in track records. Helen Stephens, the "Missouri Flier" amazed the crowd over in Columbia by doing the 50 yards also in 5.9 seconds.

The apparent ease with which the Grads defeated the famed Chicago group of ushers, dumdounded the manager. He said he had heard of how the Edmonton girls "shelled" the best team coming from the States, but he did not think it possible against such a select group of stars he had brought. The coming contest with the St. Louis girls promises to be highly interesting also, for they have had a wonderful string of victories, which proves them worthy of the best efforts of the Grads. If you want an exciting evening, just fill up the gas buggy and aim for the arena.

"I hear that the love affair between that Bruce fellow and that Holden girl ended in smoke," said one of our men gossips to a friend. "How so?" the other asked. "He taught her how to smoke cigarettes," was the reply.
